Dear Dr.

Thanks for your note of 12 November, and for sending along "The Reunion" from the latest Leatherneck with your note of 14 November. I'm adding the article to the material you sent earlier and forwarding your file to the Agency's personnel office.

Your account of Charlie Company at Danang in 1966 reminds me of the Virgil line that Andover boys used to have to memorize: "Forsan et haec olim meminisse iuvabit"--which I understand means "Perhaps it will be pleasant to remember someday even these things."

I hope I'll have the pleasure of meeting you sometime; let me know if you find yourself in Washington.

Sincerely,

J. Kenneth McDonald
Chief Historian
